DISTRESSING AND MELANCHOLY CASE.—

A few days since an intelligent and handsome young woman, the daughter of a Confederate officer from Louisiana, left her home in Boston to visit the battle field of the Wilderness, to discover, if possible, the grave of her husband. The husband was a member of the Veteran Reserves, of the Federal army, and was killed in the memorable second battle of the Wilderness. She left her child in care of friends at home, to pay a wife's tribute of respect and love over the grave of him who in life had won her affections, and who in death still retained them. When she reached Philadelphia on her sacred pilgrimage, she was notified of the death of her child at home, but the sad event did not stop her. During the progress of the war she has lost five brothers in the service, and sustained the loss of a mother and four sisters—and heaviest of all—her husband. Under the weight of so many sorrows, it may be imagined that her constitution was well nigh shattered. She passed through Baltimore and Washington, and reached the Wilderness. There she found the last resting place of her husband, with its simple slab. And there she too was subsequently found, overcome by grief, her frame writhing in strong spasms, stretched helplessly upon the mound. She was removed, and after a short interim—during which she suffered constantly from spasms—the effect of an overwrought mind and a shattered nervous system, she came to Richmond, en route to Petersburg in search of her father, who she had understood was here. In Richmond she was still a sufferer from spasms—during one of which she was robbed of most of her money and personal effects. She came thence by river to this city, at which place she arrived on Saturday.—In the afternoon of this day, while at the Provost Marshal's office, she was again attacked with spasms, which came and went away with such rapidity that for several hours she could not be removed. In her lucid moments she wept over her condition, and during her relapses she conversed about her dead husband. The scene was one which drew tears from all who witnessed it. When her condition admitted of her removal she was sent to the Fair Grounds Hospital, where she is now under kind medical treatment.—Petersburg Ex.

On the 14th inst., in the New Hampshire Legislature, Mr. McNeil of Hillsborough introduced the following resolution.

"Resolved, That we cordially and earnestly indorse the declaration of the Chief Executive of the nation, that 'the States which have been in rebellion are still States, or, in other words, that the governments of those States were not destroyed, but were only in abeyance, and that when the rebellion was suppressed and the laws and the Constitution revived, neither the President nor Congress has any authority to prescribe the qualifications of electors of those States.'"

When the vote was taken, the resolution was rejected by a party vote—the Abolitionists going in a body against it! It is an extract from President Johnson himself.

The following is the text of that part of the Queen's speech at the prorogation of Parliament which relates to the affairs of Canada and the United States:

"Her Majesty rejoices that the civil war in North America has ended, and she trusts that the evils caused by that long conflict may be repaired, and that prosperity may be restored in the States which have suffered from the contest.

Her Majesty regrets that the conferences and communications between her Majesty's North American provinces on the subject of the union of those provinces in a confederation have not yet led to a satisfactory result. Such a union would afford additional strength to those provinces, and give facilities for many internal improvements. Her Majesty has received gratifying assurances of the devoted loyalty of her North American subjects."

The following appointments of postmasters were made yesterday afternoon:

At Fredericksburg, Spotsylvania county, Va., Charles Williams, postmaster.

At Charlottesville, Albemarle county, Va., Henry Massie, postmaster.

The reports of the declining health of Mr. Davis, in confinement at Fortress Monroe, are contradicted.

At the large sale of coal in New York, prices showed a small advance over the sale in June.
